The citations:
PO. Powell: "PO. Powell has taken part in many operational sorties. Recently he has been engaged on a number of low level attacks against the enemy, during the course of which he has severely damaged 19 locomotives."
This officer has always shown exceptional tenacity in his exploits with the enemy, coupled with a total disregard for his own safety. His enthusiasm and cool courage have set a splendid example to all."

SHOES AND SHELTER
I WANT to emphasize that all these scarcities and absolute disappearances of things was not spread over two and a half years of war. They came all at once. In five months the face of Germany's supply situation changed with a swiftness that was staggering. Clothing offers one of the best examples of this rapid decline. All through the war, clothing was not good, but one had no difficulty in getting one's allotted number of "points" worth, as allowed by the annual ration card. This was still true at the beginning of the Russian war. But by the time the Germans entered Kiev, clothing rationing had become purely theoretical. Clothing simply ceased to exist, to borrow the term the High Command was then applying to the Russian armies. In show-windows all-important appearances were kept up, the windows were full of fine shirts, red pyjamas, striped socks and real woolen sweaters. But the give-away was an inconspicuous little card down in the corner of the window which stated the contents of the window might not be sold until decorations were changed. Decorations simply did not change. In June, I put in a bid for a pair of those red pyjamas. When I left Germany six months later, in December, 1941, decorations—i.e., my pyjamas—still had not changed.

Inside, shops were empty. Shelves were bare. There were no more shoes, except a lone, worn-out salesman, who was always sorry but if you could come back next week, perhaps new orders which had been ordered would have arrived. About the time the Nazis were frank. At the very beginning of the campaign, they issued a leaflet to each family in Berlin explaining that civilians could expect no more shoes. Another leaflet was issued to the soldiers. The leaflets did state, however, that "special measures" would be taken to justify the granting of a permit to buy shoes, but nobody in Germany was ever granted such an allowance. I discovered that these special conditions were not to be granted to anyone who had been in the shoes held together by packing cord whose bottoms were stuffed with cardboard. Only army shoes could not be discovered. The army shoes were in the hands of the authorities for a new pair.

The third traditional category of things essential to man after food and clothing—shelter—has, entered a pre-crisis stage. Like the shoes, this was not a sudden change. It was a gradual process. The first sign of it was the appearance of the "black out" in the hands of the Germans and Italians in Tripoli, the broadcast said.

Army Takes Precedence Beef Sales

All Edmonton wholesale meat vendors have been advised by wire from Ottawa that requirements of the armed forces for beef supplies must be each week before any sale to the civilian public are permitted. The order, issued by the food administration of the War Board, goes into effect immediately.

Similar orders have been issued across Canada.

Effect of the order means that meat supplies will be rationed, but not determined, but officials of some of the packing plants stated Tuesday that it is bound to cause "probably serious" curtailment of meat supplies in retail stores, especially at the beginning of each week.

Reference to a statement from Vancouver in which it was revealed that the order meant that about 50 per cent of the beef supplies of Vancouver plants would have to be held for army consumption, one of the local officials stated that the case would be that serious beef shortage in the winter months. It was stated that simplifying the situation.

NOTHING DEFINITE
Officials were unable to state definitely how serious the effect upon meat supply for civilians would be, but they did say that previous adjustments towards that

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—Red army troops drove from two directions today on Arzavinsk and Voroshilovsk, German defence point northwest of Georgievsk, and front dispatches reported the Axis retreat was becoming a rout in some sectors of the Caucasus.

Major Gen. Ivan Kravchenko's Cossack raid 13 miles up the Caucasus railroad from the town of Arzavinsk today during the night. They were within 10 miles of Arzavinsk, a strategic town on the railroad and on the Kistlik-Masakh Kala line which parallels it. Voroshilovsk, the other German point immediately threatened, is a major railway junction.

Other Soviet forces were driving down from the Kalmuk steppes and had advanced to Nominovskaya, 34 miles northeast of Voroshilovsk.

These two columns threatened to cut off the enemy troops retreating from the Caucasus. The Georgievsk-Voroshilovsk region captured yesterday by the Russians.

THEY WERE IN HEAVY BATTLE
(Axis sources refused to admit defeat of the Georgievsk railroad crossing. Radio Vichy said that so far as the everyday things, particularly foodstuffs, they have been rationed because there was an actual shortage of supplies because of the wholeness of some bureaucracy.

Nazi Chieftains In Africa Fight Over Leadership

LONDON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Reliable information from German official sources from Germany today indicated that a squabble for authority between Field Marshal Erwin Rommel and Gen. Walter Nehring underlies the friction over who is to command the German forces in Tunisia.

It was said that even intervention by Hitler failed to reconcile the two high German officers.

Propaganda analysts in Allied nations have pointed out recently that Nazi propagandists often have fed the world stories of dissension and strife in high German political and military circles in an effort to bring the United Nations into a belief of internal disintegration in Germany.

NEHRING REPLACES

The report has been current for several weeks that Nehring had been replaced by Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim as commander-in-chief of the Axis forces in Tunisia.

Well-informed neutrals said this apparently was true and resulted from Rommel's refusal to serve under Nehring.

Nehring, likewise, was reported to have refused to serve under Rommel.

The German radio continues to assert that Nehring has been removed, referring today to German reinforcements going "to Nehring's third army in Tunisia."

War News Summary

TUESDAY, JANUARY 12

Russia: The Germans are apparently retreating from the Caucasus in the face of Russian drives which seriously threaten to cut them off if they do not get out.

The case with which the Russians have taken Georgievsk, Plozha and other towns on or near the Trans-Caucasian railroad in the last two days supports the belief that the Germans are preparing to make a stand in that region but intend to fall back to defend the Caucasus railroad at Kizilior.

However, it is possible that the Russians will storm Rostov before the North Caucasus army is driven from the Caucasus. The Russian offensive is impressive.

From the north, the Russians are driving westward of Eliza, towards Shakh, 47 miles from Rostov. To the east, they are driving down the Salgirsk-Skafka railroad toward Sak, an important junction on the line branching off to Rostov.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

Germans and Italians in the southern flank of the Mediterranean.

Land fighting on the northern sector of the Tunisian front was continuing.

There were active engagements between French and Axis troops in the southern flank of the Mediterranean.

Our troops made quick substantial gains at Karak, south of P.O. Du Fahs, the French spokesman said.

Further south the French reported beating off a German attack and capturing 100 prisoners.

The Flying Fortresses took a number of German aircraft down in the air in connection with the raid on Ghadames, which was reported to have been a success after a high level bombing.

British headquarters again announced "nothing to report" from the British 18th Army. There was a sharp increase in aerial activity over the desert battle field.

Europe: Air strikes at both ends of Nazi-occupied Europe. Allied warplanes pounded German targets in the night, in daylight yesterday and bombed the great Ruhr industrial valley.

British headquarters disclosed that German planes as well as the Luftwaffe's fighters were adding in the defense of Italy, the Luftwaffe's fighters were attacking the defense of Italy.

Pacific Theater: The Japanese are pushing up a stubborn resistance along the path of the British 18th Army. The enemy is strongly reorganizing its forces.

There is no important change in the situation in the Pacific. The Japanese are pushing up a stubborn resistance along the path of the British 18th Army.

Must Report on All Employees

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Reports will be required from employers every three months on the number and occupations of their employees, under labor department regulations soon to be announced, officials said yesterday.

Names of the employees will not be asked, but information as to their age groups and the types of work on which they are engaged will be obtained from employers by local National Selective Service

CHECK ON "DRIFT"

The periodical reports from employers will permit a check on the "drift" of workers from job to job and assist in planning the use of the national labor force, one official said.

"The plan is definitely coming into effect, but details will not be completed for public announcement for two or three days," he said.

The three-month check on employees was expected to begin Jan. 31 and reports made up by employers will cover both male and female employees.

The employers will present the required information on simple forms and will report on groups of employees, the official said. There will be no requirement that individual employees be listed.

Regulations Governing Sale of Homes Are Protested

Receives Film City Informing Back in City Hall Managers Of Fire Report

Instructions have been issued to John Martland, city building inspector by the city commissioners to circulate managers of entertainment halls regarding infractions of the building by-law found in the recent survey made by Max Dewar, assistant building inspector, and Fire Marshal Jack Booth.

In the communication to the proprietors they are asked to intimate what steps are being taken to remedy the defects in the building and bring it into conformity with the by-laws.

Most of the infractions are of a minor character such as not having exit and entrance doors equipped with "panic bolts or quick action latches," not maintaining "the proper supply of fire extinguishers," and other minor defects.

In certain cases it has been found that entrance and exit doors are too narrow to conform with the by-laws and some of the ground floor levels, the stairs leading to the hall are too narrow.

The report of the two officials is now being tabulated for submission to a special meeting of the city council and the by-laws committee. It is expected that representations from the proprietors of the entertainment halls will be made at this meeting.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Every Service Man Has To Have Camp Dates

Girls Left Behind Will Remain as True as Boys Away; Lonely Women Should Try to Make Friends

DEAR MISS DIX: We are young men of 25 in the army and would like to have some advice from you on the workings of the female mind. (1) Will our girls remain true to us for the duration? (2) Is it wrong for us to go to service dates when we are engaged to girls at home? (3) Should we talk about our girls or just think about them? (4) Should we write them every day? (5) What do girls appreciate from service men? (6) Is it fair to ask our girls not to go out with civilians?

We are deeply worried over these problems and would appreciate your trying to solve them for us.

THREE PRIVATES

ANSWER: Well, boys, nobody can tell you how the female mind works its wonders to perform, or why the cat will jump in any given situation, but being a woman myself and knowing something of my sex, I should say in answer to your questions: (1) Your girls are just as likely to remain true to you for the duration as you are to them. Surely that gives you an even break and it all that you expect from them. In fact, I should say the odds are in your favor, for in your moving about you will see many attractive young women, while the draft has taken most of the eligible boys and most towns are now almost deserted. And if you are an Admired Eden, with a girl's only chances of dating being with school boys and gringos, neither of whom are formidable rivals.

(2) Certainly it is alright for you to go to service dates. Boys need feminine companionship and encouragement, to keep up their morale, and obviously it is no fun

If parents know how children are inclined to eat at different ages they can be much more patient about this behavior. They will be patient because they know the child is not eating because they can expect an end to it.

When each deviation from a pattern of eating habits is noted, the parent is met with exasperation. When the child is not eating, the parent is met with exasperation. When the child is not eating, the parent is met with exasperation.

A father writes suggesting that I am one of those advisory articles at parents of children who have their heads and refuse to eat when spoken to; who cling to a plate timidly and stare, on sign of manners whatever. I feel sorry for that parent. He is manufacturing problems where none exist. He wants his child to act like a grown-up and there will be no chance of that for many years of come.

From 3 months to about 2 years and beyond, the child is a natural timidly toward strangers. All children are like this. The family. A child's whole personality may be changed when he is placed in a new environment. The parents and care-takers, making the child feel that he is in a new environment.

At 2 years it is unfair to ask a child to eat like a grown-up unless you are definitely engaged to him. Even then, it is better not to do so. The child is not a grown-up. He is a child. He is a child. He is a child.

In the end every man has a little child in him. Whether it is a sweetheart or his wife. The right sort of a child is a child. The right sort of a child is a child. The right sort of a child is a child.

Points For Parents

By EDITH THOMAS WALLACE

DEAR MISS DIX: I am deeply in love with a man in the air corps. He expects to go overseas at any time. He has an embarking leave next month and he insists that I meet him and spend it with him. He says he will not know of our plans and that it is the last I can do before he goes away. Do you think I will regret it if I do?

ANSWER: You will bitterly regret it. If a man loves you and his intentions are honorable, why doesn't he marry you and let you have a good home to live in?

Chicago Vocational Schools Train Many War Workers

Students Fabricating Metals at the School

Here are students fabricating metal at the Chicago Vocational School here. After a course at the school the graduate student is able to take his place without delay in the industrial world at well-paid work. At the school, only fully licensed instructors are employed. All equipment is tested regularly by government inspectors. Directed by K. L. Lawson, thousands of students have passed through the school's courses to take responsible jobs.

Thousands of Students Receive Education Here During Last Three Years

Shipyard workers and war-plant workers, today more vital to the well-being of Canada than ever before in history, are passing through, as graduate welders, the doors of the Chicago Vocational Training School at 12520 102 Avenue. With accommodation for 40 students, the school, which has now been operating for three years, has trained thousands of welders who are now in important positions in the shipyards of the west coast, in the war factories of the east, mining centres of the north and war production centres in the United States.

Manager of the school is K. L. Lawson, formerly in charge of the school's vocational training in the east. He succeeded N. S. Chadwick a few months ago.

The school is under the operation of a fully Canadian-owned company with its head office and a school in Winnipeg. Another school is operated in Toronto. President of the company is R. L. Towle.

Only fully licensed instructors are employed at the school. Present personnel of the teaching staff includes Albert and Joe Jacobs and E. J. Walker, all ex-army/air force welding instructors and O. Jaboury, chief instructor for electric, diesel and automotive welding.

COURSES VARY
Length of the courses vary in oxy-acetylene welding from 30 days up and in diesel and automotive mechanics from four to six months. While in attendance at Chicago Vocational, students are given the necessary groundings in enable them to take their places in the industrial world.

Fully Equipped and Modern School For Welders

The Chicago Vocational Training School, situated at 12520 102 Avenue, where students receive expert tuition in all phases of welding. The building, large and airy is equipped with the most modern and up-to-date machinery obtainable. Recently the school purchased the equipment of the Weldrite company, formerly operating on Kingway and 101 street. Installation of this equipment has marked a progressive step in the school's progress, for it makes it one of the most completely equipped schools in Western Canada.

House Committee Gets Unique Case

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CPI)—When the House of Commons committee on privileges and elections meets after parliament reconvenes Jan. 27, it will consider a case without parallel in about 50 years, it was learned here yesterday.

The case is that of Robert G. Davidson, Liberal member for St. John's, who in 1940 was elected by 288 majority over a French-speaking Independent Liberal. A petition alleging corrupt practices was filed by a supporter of the defeated candidate, but at the trial was dismissed by two judges.

On appeal, however, the supreme court of Canada reversed this dismissal and found that the election was invalidated. Davidson then sought to appeal to the Privy Council, but was refused the right to do so.

A belief had existed that the St. John's seat was open, and that an election would take place. Under the controversial election act, however, it now is necessary for the committee on privileges and elections to review the case and the different judgments, and decide if writs for a new election should be issued.

Meanwhile, authorities here said Mr. Davidson is still the member for St. John's, and fully entitled to keep his seat.

Chinese Warplanes Hit Jan. Airdrome

One of the Chinese planes was lost.

Islands of Continuous Warfare

War goes on in the Solomons with planes, warships and troops of both sides fighting every day. Sometimes fleets clash in major naval engagements, but for the most part it is troop battles on Guadalcanal and raids on enemy bases by U.S. big bombers that keep this vital front from Rabaul to Henderson Field alive with action.

Bombs and shells smashed into towns along the Dover Cliffs as Prime Minister Churchill rallied the people of England to battle during the days after Dunkirk. In town and hamlet the people listened to the roar of destruction mingled with the words of their Prime Minister. Their answer was the answer of all of England, "We will hang on and fight back."

"Dover's Cliffs," latest National Film Board release in the World in Action series, tells the grim yet heartening story of the people who live along the shore of England nearest to Nazi Germany. Filmed in their shattered towns, the picture leaves no doubt that their spirit is indomitable, their will to victory strong and determined. The World in Action series has received a special award from the U.S. National Board of Review of Motion Pictures as an outstanding wartime documentary series.

Inside the towns of the Dover Cliffs, ringed with gun emplacements and barbed wire, the people have adapted themselves to the new life of war. The new spirit that has surged through England is present in every street and house of these front-line towns. This is what Ed. Morrow, famed CBS commentator, found when he visited the east coast. He tells the story in "Dover's Cliffs."

Reconstruction, the work of community kitchens, evacuation plans, care of the aged, the children and the wounded went right on under the wings of the German air force. Crowded houses, partly destroyed by bombs, were torn down to make room for the new housing development that England is planning to put into effect after the war. Streets filled with cinders were rebuilt. The gas, light and water systems were repaired. Throughout the towns the work of reconstruction started almost before the last bomb was dropped.

A.R.P. and community kitchens were organized in a point where they functioned smoothly through the worst raids. Every man and woman was taught to care for wounded, how to fight fires and incendiary bombs. The people of Dover Cliffs became front line soldiers. They took their disasters and grief with heroic courage. Each new raid, each new outbreak of shelling only increased their determination to strike back at the enemy.

Today new wings fly over Dover's Cliffs. The wings of the R.A.F. roaring a thousand strong across the channel to carry the war to the heart of Germany. Standing amid the ruins of their towns the people of the Dover Cliffs watch with pride as the great air armada soars over their heads.

Their battle is won. The war is carried to the enemy.

Titled Beauty

Given a title to end all titles, Mary Marlin of Hollywood has been dubbed "Miss Blue Ribbon of 1942" by the California Models Guild because she set record of holding most beauty titles so far this year.

"We've been bombed, dive-bombed, high level bombed, machine gunned, and been through invasion scares, and the last lot we had, we had the house burned about our ears." Mr. and Mrs. Swatheridge of Dover embody the indomitable spirit of the people of Dover's Cliffs. But, says Mrs. Swatheridge in the current National Film Board World in Action release, "Dover's Cliffs," "we're still sticking it, and we're going to stick it, till the boys go over to the other side. Then we'll have a jolly good holiday."

Today, the planes that cross the front line of Dover's Cliffs are carrying their bombs in another direction. Two years ago, when the people of Dover heard the hum of mighty motors, they said, "This is it." Now, in raids a thousand strong, Britain's R.A.F. carries the war to the enemy.

"Pointer on target... Height finder on target... Predictors set... Field... 1-2 Fire" Girls in England man the spotter, height finder, predictor and radio location. Says one of them: "We aim the guns, and the men load and fire them. We have had some casualties from bombed centres, but not as many as the Germans have had from our guns."

Building a Muddy Road to War

Mud, swamps and thick-grown tropical trees make it tough going for Army engineers building "highways" through New Guinea jungles. Roads like this are needed to speed troops and supplies to the Buna front.

SO YOUR HUSBAND'S GONE TO WAR!

by ETHEL GORHAM • whose husband is at war

CHAPTER NINE
One Of The Things He's Fighting For

WHAT is important is that war is bad—but there are things worse. And you owe your children, no matter how young, a reason why "Where is Daddy, Mummy? Will he be dead? What happens when you die?" the child asks.

"Why is Daddy going to kill other people, Mummy?" Are the Jews really bad? Are the Germans bad? Do they always like to kill people?"

Older children will shy away from abstract answers. Younger ones won't understand them at all. You can tell your twelve-year-old son about "liberty" and "equality" and "democracy" without honestly pointing out how short of the mark they are here. You must tell him that at least there is the chance of "liberty" and "equality" in America—while Fascism would give a lad his age nothing to look forward to but enslavement. And because there is still the chance here to make democracy a working thing, you must tell him how to do it. Since racial intolerance is one of the most ominous tenets of Nazism, you must point out how important it is for us to win it in our own country, beginning first in his school. Because women are held in such contempt under Fascism, you must remind him how dignified it is for us to win it in our own country, beginning first in his school. Because women are held in such contempt under Fascism, you must remind him how dignified it is for us to win it in our own country, beginning first in his school.

Little Hilda who goes to school with your child is German. It's bad, Mummy?"

"No," you answer. "But little Hilda is different."

"Why is she different?"

"Because little Hilda lives here now. You know there must be Germans in Germany who are 'good' today, even though it might be simpler to make it an open-and-shut case of right and wrong you can't do it. You, too, must remember that the word 'democracy' is not an abstract one. Be grateful that our generation isn't carrying on its duty as the one in the last war. We haven't changed the name of our country back to liberty. We know the difference between Nazi and German. The best sign of how far ahead we are in democratic spirit as a people is that in this war, we play Beethoven and Brahms and Schubert and Schumann without question."

We honor those German refugees who have found a haven on our shores. They teach in our universities, edit our magazines, write for our newspapers, paint pictures we go to see.

It is fighting the enemies of these Germans, we can tell our children, "when we fight the Nazis."
